

Alexandria, Virginia

The International Information System Security Certification Consortium

Real Estate Services – Tenant Advisory + Workplace Solutions

The International Information System Security Certification Consortium (ISC)² is the largest global IT security training and certification organization with over 168,000 members.

(ISC)² is a thriving hybrid operating model with people and chapters across the world. When the organization transitioned to a nearly 100% remote workforce the 30,000 SF headquarters office in Clearwater, Florida no longer fit their needs.

(ISC)² hired Transwestern to help them downsize and relocate to the Washington, D.C. region to be near government contractors, cybersecurity firms and the Pentagon.

Understanding the office needed to reflect (ISC)²'s culture and serve as a home base for collaboration and training, Transwestern identified 625 N Washington St. in Alexandria, Virginia as the prime choice. The 188,000 SF building offers easy access to area airports, public transit and major roadways, and is surrounded by abundant amenities.

Transwestern represented (ISC)² in lease negotiations and provided project management services for the 15,000 SF office buildout, including coordinating with decision makers across the world and delivering on a tight timeline.

transwestern.com

“Collaboration and culture are fundamental to (ISC)² so it was critical for them to have a home base that reflects these values.”

Adam Collins, SIOR
Vice President